CAMPAIGNS OF A NON-COMBATANT, AND HIS ROMAUNT ASROAD DURING THE WAR. By GRORGE ALFRED TOWNSHIPS. IZERS, pp. 252. Beliebek & Co. This volume of sketches by Mr. Townsend, is rollicking, witty, and generally amusing; himself more with personal incidents than with strategy, and recording the jokes, the tribulations, and the tragedies of the ranks rather than the plans of generals or the perplexities of military coun-sils. His book consists chiefly of a series of papers ori-ginally contributed to the Cernhill Magazine. To these he has added a few chapters illustrative of American life In Europe, with his final experiences in the war after his return to his own country. His account of "Our Own Correspondent in England," describing his adventures in search of literary employment in the Old World, is especially interesting.

Gan's Hill Place. March 23, 1865.

As the author of the "Pickwick Papers" (and of one or two other books). I send you a few facts, and no comments, having reference to a letter signed "R Seymour, which is your editorial discretion you published last week.

Mr. Seymour the art at never originated, suggested, or in any way had to do with, save as illustrator of what I devised, an incident, a character (except the sporting tastes of Mr. Winklet, it name, a phrase, or a word, to be found in the "Pickwick Papers." Pickwick Papers."

Wishled, a name, a phrase, or a word, to be found in the "Pickwick Papers."

I never saw Mr. Seymour's handwriting, I believe, in my life.

I never cven saw Mr. Seymour but once in my life, and that was within eight and forty bours of his untimely death. Two persons, both still living, were persons took still living, were present on that occasion.

Mr. Seymour died when only the first twenty-four printed pages of he "Pickwick Papers," were published; I think before the next three or four pages were completely written; I am sure before one subsequent line of the book was invented. In the Preface to the Cheap Edition of the "Pickwick Papers," published in October, 1847. I thus described the origin of that work. "I was a young man of three and twenty, when the present publisher, attracted by some pieces I was at that time writing in The Marsing Chrowick newspaper (of which one series had lately been collected and published in two volumes, Illustrated by my esteemed friend, Mr. George Cruisshaak), waired upon me to propose a something that should be published in shilling numbers—the only known to me, or. I believe, to anybody else, by a dim recollection of sectian interminable novels in I that form, which used, some five-and-twenty years ago, to be earried about the country by peddlers, and over some of which I remember to have shed innumerable tears, before I served my apprenticeship to Life.

The idea propounded to me was that the monthly something should be a vehicle for certain plates to be executed by Mr. Seymour, and there was a notion, either on the part of that admirable humorous artist, or of my visitor (I forget which), that a "Nisured Cliby, the members of which were to go out shootiag, fishing, and so forth, and getting themselves into difficulties through their want of dexterity, would be the best means of introducing these. I objected, on consideration, that although born and partly brad in the country I was no great sportsman faceby in the country of the country of the country of the country of the c
